Does anyone in your family have difficulties with spelling, reading, writing, maths or have dyslexic tendencies? As 1 person in 5 experiences difficulties it is more than likely you will know someone. Are you aware that your youngster is bright, yet struggling at school?

You can now learn in just a few hours how to help youngsters and adults who are struggling with literacy and numeracy and how to teach our under 7s those visual strategies that will stop them becoming confused.

Youngsters say comments like:

“This is so easy isn't it cheating?” “This is just far too much fun!”

Come along to our new 2010 Practitioner training, 9:30am-12.30

The new 2010 practitioner training teaches you how to teach others and gives you practice and confidence to use your new skills. You will learn how our best spellers and readers already use these skills and be able to teach others the very next day.

Early Years Framework workshop and study skills for any age: a new programme for 2010, to enable parents and teachers of very young children (< 7 years old) to understand visual learning and be able to ensure that all children develop excellent visual skills. These skills will serve them well in all school work and in every aspect of life, avoiding confusion with literacy and numeracy. This is completely complementary to the teaching they will be receiving in school. The study skills part has invaluable tips to make learning easy. 1-4pm
